9575 Extreme™

Iridium Extreme™ is a new force in communication, putting innovative capability into the hands of people everywhere.

The ultimate in ruggedised, optimised and standardised engineering built to military specifications. It is the first satellite phone with a military-grade 810F durability rating and Ingress Protection rating of 65. This makes the phone shock resistant, dust proof and water resistant whilst offering the same reliable voice, SMS and data capabilities Iridium users have come to expect from the only network delivering true pole to pole global communications.

With online tracking and customisable GPS services capability to improve logistical efficiency for businesses, military and emergency response teams, Iridium's smallest handset ever can be one of your most powerful tools. It is possible to send your co-ordinates via SMS from anywhere in the world to friends, family or colleagues.

The adaptor accessory now combines with your phone, allowing you to connect external equipment with ease. This includes the AxxessPoint, which plugs into the handset and turns your phone into a Wi-Fi hotspot with Internet access.

The 9575 Extreme™ handset offers more features than any other phone on the market, built upon the intuitive out-of-the-box functionality Iridium have created.
